CREATING A HEALTHIER COMMUNITY

Supporting the Health of Expectant Mothers

- Magee-Womens educates on obesity and healthy eating during teachable moments, such as during pregnancy, or when obesity is impacting daily life.
- The hospital's Centering Pregnancy program promotes healthy behaviors and breastfeeding among expectant mothers through outpatient clinics located in Wilkinsburg and Mt. Oliver.

Encouraging Better Nutrition

- Cancer patients and survivors have access to free, individual nutritional counseling through the Magee-Womens Cancer Services Nutrition Education and Support Program.
- Through the hospital's Bodychangers program, Magee's PrepAbility Classes help individuals better understand nutrition and prepare healthy meals.

Innovating in Environmental Health, Safety, and Stewardship

- In 2013, Magee-Womens earned the prestigious Environmental Leadership Circle Award for the second year in a row, demonstrating the hospital's strong commitment to environmental health.
- Hospital environmental efforts include recycling, counseling childbearing families about environmental health, and reducing waste.

Patients, hospital staff, and the community benefit from the Magee-Womens organic gardens. Food from the gardens is incorporated into meals for both employees and patients.

“ The agenda for women's health is critical to our entire community. Through its exceptional care, Magee-Womens is strengthening our region by Keeping Women Strong. ”

LISTENING TO THE COMMUNITY AND ADDRESSING ITS NEEDS:

In 2013, Magee-Womens Hospital of UPMC conducted a Community Health Needs Assessment which brought together community leaders and public health experts to identify and discuss local health needs. The assessment showed that obesity and nutrition and healthy eating are important health topics for Magee-Womens Hospital of UPMC to focus on over the next three years.
